

What the science and technology index tells us about development in Africa

By Gayle Allard

in The Conversation

In 2001, the RAND Corporation's Science and Technology Policy Institute created an index of science and technology capacity for the World Bank. They ranked 150 countries based on their potential to innovate and work with more scientifically advanced nations.

Photo by Christopher Gower on Unsplash