

What are the measurables?

The RAND index selected seven components for which national level data were available for most countries for 2001 or an immediately preceding year.

